
Guide to Understanding the Property Tax Process

Guide to Understanding the Property Tax Process

The following material has been adapted from the publication Property Taxpayer Remedies published by the State Comptroller of Public Accounts, and from various publications by the Hockley County Appraisal District.

The Basics

Property taxes are local taxes. Local officials appraise your property, set your tax rates, and collect your taxes. However, Texas law governs how the process works.

In Hockley County, property taxes are based on tax rates set by the various local governments (taxing units) that levy a tax and on property values. The valuation or appraisal process, which is performed by the Hockley County Appraisal District, serves to allocate the tax burden among property owners.

The property tax provides more tax dollars for local government services in Texas than any other source. Property taxes help pay for public schools, city streets, county roads, police, fire protection, and many other services.

Constitutional Standards

The Texas State Constitution sets out five standards for the property tax.

1. Taxation must be equal and uniform. All property must be appraised and taxed in an equal and uniform manner. This provision, which is an equity standard, helps ensure that no single property or type of property pays more than its fair share of taxes.
2. With some exceptions, all tangible property must be taxed on its January 1 market value. The exceptions include certain agricultural, timber, recreational, park, and scenic land subject to special appraisal. A property's market value is the price for which it would sell when both buyer and seller want the best price and neither is under pressure to buy or sell.
3. All property is taxable unless federal or state law provides an exemption for it. An exemption excludes all or part of a property's value from taxation.
4. Property owners have a right to reasonable notice of increases in appraised property values.

5. Each property in a given appraisal district must have one appraised value. An appraisal district's boundaries generally follow the boundaries of the county in which it is located.

How Does the System Work?

There are three main parts to the property tax system in Texas:

1. An appraisal district in each county sets the value of taxable property each year. The chief appraiser is the appraisal district's chief administrator and is responsible to a board of directors for its operation.
2. An appraisal review board (ARB) settles any disagreements between you and the appraisal district about the value of your property.
3. Local taxing units, including the county, cities, school districts, and special districts, decide how much money they will spend each year. This in turn determines the tax rate they need to set and the total amount of taxes that you and your neighbors will pay.

The system has four stages: valuing the taxable property, protesting the values, adopting the tax rates, and collecting the taxes.

January 1st marks the beginning of property appraisal. What a property is used for on January 1st, market conditions at that time, and who owns the property on that date determine whether the property is taxed, its value, qualifications for exemptions, and who is responsible for paying the tax.

Between January 1st and April 30th, the appraisal district processes applications for tax exemptions and agricultural and timber productivity valuations. In June, the appraisal review board begins hearing protests from property owners who believe their property values are incorrect, or who feel they were improperly denied an exemption or agricultural/timber appraisal. The ARB is an independent panel of citizens responsible for handling protests about the taxpayer's property. When the ARB finishes its work, the chief appraiser gives each taxing unit a list of taxable property known as the appraisal roll.

Usually in September or October, the elected officials of each taxing unit adopt tax rates for their operations and debt payments. Typically, each property is taxed by several taxing units. For example, every property in Hockley County is taxed by both the county and a school district.

Tax collection starts in October when tax bills are mailed out. Taxpayers have until January 31st of the following year to pay their taxes. On February 1st, penalty and interest charges begin accumulating on most unpaid tax bills. Taxing units may start legal action to collect unpaid property taxes once they become delinquent.

What is the Taxpayer's Role?

You can play an effective role in the process if you know your rights, understand the remedies available to you, and fulfill your responsibilities as a property owner and taxpayer.

Know Your Rights:

- You have the right to equal and uniform tax appraisals. Your property value should be the same as that placed on other properties that are similar or comparable to yours.
Unless your property qualifies for special appraisal, such as agricultural land, you have the right to have it taxed on its January 1st market value.
- You have the right to receive all tax exemptions for which you apply and qualify.
- You have the right to notices of changes in your property value or in your exemptions.
- You have the right to know about a taxing unit's proposed tax rate increase and to have time to comment on it.

Understand Your Remedies:

- If you believe your property has been appraised for more than its January 1st market value, or if you were denied an exemption or agricultural appraisal, you may protest to the appraisal review board. If you don't agree with the review board ruling, you may take your case to court or binding arbitration.
- You may speak out at public hearings when your elected officials are deciding how to spend your taxes and setting the tax rate.
- You and your fellow taxpayers may limit major tax increases in an election to roll back or limit the tax rate.

Fulfill Your Responsibilities:

- You must apply for exemptions, agricultural appraisal, and other forms of tax relief before the deadlines.
- You must see that your property is listed correctly in the appraisal records. If your property is omitted from the records and escapes taxation, it becomes subject to a back assessment. In the event a back assessment occurs, it may cover up to five prior years in the case of real property (land and improvements), and up to two prior years for business personal property.
- If you own tangible personal property used for the production of income (business personal property), you must annually render it to the chief appraiser. Personal property which escapes taxation because of failure to render becomes subject to back assessment when discovered by the appraisal district.
- You must pay your taxes on time.

Appointing an Agent

You may represent yourself in any property tax matter. or you may appoint a representative, commonly called an "agent", to handle specific duties. You don't need an agent to file for exemptions that are available to homeowners, disabled veterans and charitable or religious organizations. You can just get an application form from the appraisal district.

To appoint an agent, you must give them written authorization to represent you. You must use a special "Appointment of Agent" form 50-162, available from the Hockley County Appraisal District or State Comptroller's Office. No form is necessary if the person is your attorney, employee, or a person who is simply acting as a courier. With limited exceptions, agents who represent property owners for a fee must be licensed by the Texas Department of Licensing & Regulation in Austin.

The agent may represent you in one or more areas that you designate on the form: to file notices of protest, to present your case before the ARB, to negotiate on value disputes, to receive notices or tax bills, or to handle any other specific action.

The special form asks for a date when your authorization to this person ends. If you don't give an ending date, the agent continues to represent you indefinitely until you file a statement with the appraisal district ending the appointment or you appoint a new agent.

By law, the appraisal district cannot recommend or refer you to a tax agent. If you have a complaint about a tax agent, you may file it online with the Department of Licensing and Regulation at <http://www.license.state.tx.us>.

Setting the Tax Rates

Once the appraisal review board approves the appraisal records, the chief appraiser prepares and certifies an appraisal roll for each taxing unit. An appraisal roll lists the taxable property within the boundaries of the taxing unit.

In September or October of each year, the governing body of each taxing unit adopts a tax rate that, when applied to the total taxable value of all property within the unit's boundaries, produces a tax levy sufficient to meet the unit's budgeted revenue needs.

Information regarding the rate setting process is available in a pamphlet published by the State Comptroller of Public Accounts titled Texas Property Taxes: Taxpayers' Rights, Remedies & Responsibilities.

How to Get More Information

Additional information regarding functions handled by the Hockley County Appraisal District is available on this website (hockleycad.org). You may also visit the appraisal district's offices to obtain pamphlets on these same subjects or to visit with trained customer service staff. The appraisal district can answer your questions about property values, exemptions, agricultural or timber appraisal, and protests to the appraisal review board.

Most property tax records are open to public inspection. The appraisal district can provide appraisal and exemption related information in hard copy form. Hockley County Appraisal District information is available on the district's website.

Your taxing units can answer questions about tax rates and tax bills. Major taxing units in Hockley County are listed under the "links" tab of the website.